Putting Your Dog's Health First

Canine Health Concern (CHC) is an international non-profit animal welfare organisation that is independent of commercial bias and funding.

Started in 1994, it is here to research and provide information so that dog owners have the opportunity to make an informed decision about their loved ones. We don't have the budgets that the pharmaceutical and pet food industry have, and therefore have to rely a great deal on 'word of mouth' support from dog lovers. Subscriptions to CHC are the backbone of our existence, and fundraising/donations enable us to reach out further.

When you subscribe to CHC you will receive a quarterly newsletter with updates on activities plus information to help you help your dog (and your friends and families dogs). If you have email, you will also receive a monthly bulletin to keep you informed inbetween newsletters (plus our Pet Welfare Alliance newsletters as and when they are published). You will also have free exclusive access to our friendly internet discussion group where you can share information or ask like-minded dog lovers about your experience and choices for your dog. Plus as a subscriber you get discounted rates on products from our online store.

CHC also has books, DVDs, an educational course, and of course our website with a wealth of information and resource directory, plus a dedicated video library website.

Canine Health Concern advocates using alternative/natural healthcare for dogs. This includes real food and ethical products that do not have the potentially harmful side effects of modern drugs, plus complementary therapies. By following this path our subscribers' dogs have seen remarkable results and keep their loved ones out of the vets.

Our books have become best sellers in the dog world, and our DVD 'In Search of the Truth About Dogs' received the 'Best DVD of 2008' award from the Dog Writer's Association of America.

See overleaf to subscribe to CHC, and join the growing army of dog lovers who are achieving long lived healthy dogs, and want to help spread the good news.
